Heaven and Earth: Art of Byzantium from Greek Collections

October 6, 2013 – March 2, 2014

National Gallery of Art West Building Ground Floor

In 324 Emperor Constantine the Great moved the capital of the Roman Empire from Rome some thousand miles to the east, near the site of the ancient Greek city of Byzantium on the Bosphorus Strait linking the Aegean and Black Seas. Renamed Constantinople (now Istanbul), the city became the largest and wealthiest in the Christian world. It remained the dominant power, especially in the eastern Mediterranean, for more than 1,000 years until it fell to the Ottoman Turks in 1453. In the first-ever exhibition of Byzantine art at the Gallery, masterpieces from Greek collections (both public and private), many never before lent to the United States, will be on view—among them mosaics, icons, manuscripts, jewelry, and ceramics. Some 170 important works, including newly discovered and unpublished objects, reveal the rich and multifaceted culture of Byzantium. Divided into five thematic sections, the exhibition explores the coexistence of paganism and Christianity, secular works of art used in the home, the intellectual life of Byzantine scholars, and the art of the Palaiologan dynasty before the fall of Byzantium.

Image: The Archangel Michael, first half 14th century, tempera on wood, Byzantine and Christian Museum, Athens

Organization: The exhibition is organized by the Hellenic Ministry of Education and Religious Affairs, Culture, and Sports, Athens, with the collaboration of the Benaki Museum, Athens, and in association with the National Gallery of Art, Washington, and the J. Paul Getty Museum, Los Angeles

Living by the Book: Monks, Nuns and Their Manuscripts

The Walters Art Museum

Saturday, July 13, 2013–Sunday, September 29, 2013

Time 10:00 AM–05:00 PM on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday

Today, medieval books are treated as works of art, untouchable treasures to be locked away in cabinets. Yet many were intended for regular use as vital components of everyday life for monks and nuns, and their way of life was, in turn, crucial for the creation and preservation of manuscripts. In the vibrant culture of the monastic community, new and innovative devotional texts and images were created, while secular knowledge, including music, history, science, grammar and classical literature, was also actively enjoyed and preserved. This exhibition, of approximately 20 books, will explore the life of the monastery as told through the variety of books that were created, used, cherished, glossed, worn down and palimpsested by those who lived there over the centuries.

Battle on the Bay: Vikings Invade

September 13- 15, 2013

Barony of Lochmere

It is a fine, clear morning in 892, the waters of Patuxentsfjord ripple in the light breeze. Four Viking villages gather at this place of heroes, renowned in the sagas, to vie for the favor of the new overlord of this place called Storvik. The contests shall try not only the strength of their shields, but also the bend of their bows and the craft of their hands, for all shall be required to help the new sea lord rule wisely and well.

Each person attending the event will become a member of one of the four villages, and will have a role in helping his or her clan secure victory. Spectators will do more than just cheer on their warriors, archers, and craftsmen--they will provide concrete assistance in the contests. Melee will be the order of the day as in years past, but with four teams and input from other endeavors, you can be sure to expect lots of surprises! Oh, and all of the fighting you can handle. Questions about the fighting and format should be directed to the Marshal-in-Charge, Chevalier Joselin d'outremer at [joselindoutremer\[AT\]gmail.com](mailto:joselindoutremer@gmail.com). Updates and a detailed description of the fighting will be posted to the website.

Bacon Wars: A Haus Divided

Barony of Tir-y-Don

In the early dawn light, a mist shrouds the banks of the Rappahannock River. The silence and peace giving lie to the truth of this contested tributary. But even among the closest of friends, indeed a household, disagreement over the choicest lands can lead to lamentable words and discord. This waterway that once was bridged by friendship and camaraderie, now the breeding ground of strife and treachery. But for the moment, the veil of the river's grace and harmony persists. Then, mingled with the misty air comes the first hint of the presence of armies that mass on each bank to do battle... the wafting scent of cooking bacon.

The fair lands of Tir-y-Don call all righteous persons to their banner, for Lo! The Barony of Caer Mear and her power hungry knights have sought to wrest from Tir-y-Don lands which long have been hers to freely use without consult or bargain. But not just land is at stake, for these lands are also home to the breeding grounds of the boars and sows that provide the finest meats for the tables of the Great Kingdom of Atlantia! Let not these noble beasts become fodder for the armies of Caer Mear.

Martial Activities: Make ready for war! There will be Heavy, Rapier, and Archery available.

Arts & Sciences Activities: In the interest of giving Artisans some time to research and create, here are the A & S competitions for the day:

Documentation required (Short form is ok) Best use of, and or depiction of (Boar, Wild Pig) non-edible in period: What else can you do with this wonderful beast? Stitch it, paint it, make a pouch from it, something from its bones... The possibilities are endless. A German item from the time period of the "Haus Divided", 1450 to 1550: Documentation required (short form-ok). Open display space will also be available for finished pieces and works in progress. O Fortuna The Carmina Burana

*O Fortuna
velut luna
statu variabilis,
semper crescis
aut decrescis;
vita detestabilis
nunc obdurat
et tunc curat
ludo mentis aciem,
egestatem,
potestatem
dissolvit ut glaciem.*

*Sors immanis
et inanis,
rota tu volubilis,
status malus,
vana salus
semper dissolubilis,
obumbrata
et velata
michi quoque niteris;
nunc per ludum
dorsum nudum
fero tui sceleris.*

*Sors salutis
et virtutis
michi nunc contraria,
est affectus
et defectus
semper in angaria.
Hac in hora
sine mora
corde pulsum tangite;
quod per sortem
sternit fortem,
mecum omnes plangite!*

*O Fortune,
like the moon
you are changeable,
ever waxing
and waning;
hateful life
first oppresses
and then soothes
as fancy takes it;
poverty
and power
it melts them like ice.*

*Fate – monstrous
and empty,
you whirling wheel,
you are malevolent,
well-being is vain
and always fades to nothing,*

*shadowed
and veiled
you plague me too;
now through the game
I bring my bare back
to your villainy.*

*Fate is against me
in health
and virtue,
driven on
and weighted down,
always enslaved.
So at this hour
without delay
pluck the vibrating strings;
since Fate
strikes down the strong man, everyone weep with me!^[3]*

The Carmina Burana (in German, "Lieder aus Beuern") is a collection of plays and songs found in a medieval German manuscript. All were apparently written by wandering poets known as "goliards." The songs and plays were written at the same time, but they have been separated into two different manuscripts: the songs (the Carmina Burana proper), and the six religious plays.

Also known as: the Benediktbeuern manuscript The songs and plays in the Carmina Burana were written down sometime in the 13th century, though many of them are probably much older in origin. The work of some of the few known goliards is evident in the style and content of many of the songs. The manuscript was discovered in 1803 at Benediktbeuern, a Benedictine monastery in Bavaria from which the term "burana" is derived.
