B&B Corner

Greetings Lochmere!

We have enjoyed the tidings of the season and now turn to a new year with a renewed energy. We hope that the holidays were as enjoyable and restful as ours - and that you found some time to connect with friends and family. In three short weeks our barony will be hosting The Road to Compostela - Midwinters Revel! We will get to enjoy a pilgrim's experience, and the feast is looking wonderful as well. We hope to see as many of you as can come out, it promises to be a good time.

We are always looking for award recommendations for those who should be recognized. Please submit them to either of us via email: baron@lochmere.atlantia.sca.org or baroness@lochmere.atlantia.sca.org.

Fighter practice is going to start getting more interesting! We are going to host a tournament once a month to let fighters get some tourney practice, and to allow Ministers of the List the ability to practice running tourney formats. The date will be announced in the first week of January, so look to our social media page and e-list for more information!

We thank you all and look forward to a prosperous and exciting 2019!

In service we remain,
Cormacc and Sarra
Baron and Baroness
Lochmere

Content: The only known copy of the mystic, Margery Kempe's autobiography, telling of her life and travels in England and on pilgrimage to the Holy Land and Santiago de Compostela. The original was dictated by her to a priest of Lynn and this is probably a copy made from the original, perhaps under Margery's supervision. Decoration: Initials in red with decoration, including human faces. Nomina sacra, marginal rubrics and highlighting in red.

Carmina Et Oratio

The Book of Margery Kempe*
MS 61823
Date c. 1440

‘Here begins a short treatise and a comfort for grateful sinful wretches, wherein they may have great solace and comfort to them and understood by the high and unspeakable mercy of our sovereign Savior Christ Jesus, whose name be worshipped and magnified without end.’

Thus begins the autobiography of the philosopher and mystic Margery Kempe. She lived in England but travelled on pilgrimage to Compostelo. It was this pilgrimage that brought her to my attention this month. The copy quoted is in the British Library and several modern translations are available. But I find this is not unreadable in the middle English. Take the time to read this aloud and you too will find it vibrant and lively. There was a remarkable movement of female mystics in England during the 13th-15th c. Most famous today is Julian of Norwich but Margery was well known in period and her story survived. Below is the beginning of her book followed by a few links for more research.

Here begynnyth a schort tretys and a comfortabyl for synful wrecchys, wherein thei may have gret solas and comfort to hem and undyrstondyn the hy and unspecabyl mercy of ower sovereyn Savyowr Cryst Jhesu, whos name be worschepd and magnyfied wythowten ende, that now in ower days to us unworthy deyneth to exercysen hys nobeley and hys goodnesse.

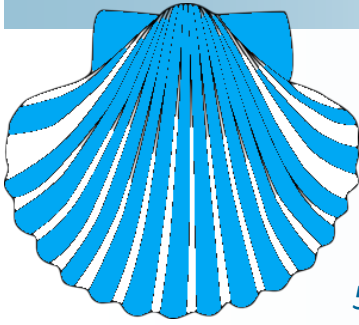

Alle the werkys of ower Saviowr ben for ower exampyl and instruccyon, and what grace that he werkyth in any creatur is ower profyth yf lak of charyté be not ower hynderawnce.

And therfor, be the leve of ower mercyful Lord Cryst Jhesu, to the magnyfying of hys holy name, Jhesu, this lytyl tretys schal tretyn sumdeel in parcel of hys wonderful werkys, how mercyfully, how benyngly, and how charytefully he meved and stered a synful caytyf unto hys love, which synful caytyf any yerys was in wyl and in purpose thorw steryng of the Holy Gost to folwyn oure Savyour, makyng gret behestys of fastyngys wyth many other dedys of penawns.

And evyr sche was turned agen abak in tym of temptacyon, lech unto the reedspyr which boweth wyth every wynd and nevyr is stable les than no wynd bloweth, unto the tyme that ower mercyfulle Lord Cryst Jhesu havyng pety and compassyon of hys handwerke and hys creatur turnyd helth into sekenesse, prosperyté into adversyté, worshep into repref, and love into hatered.

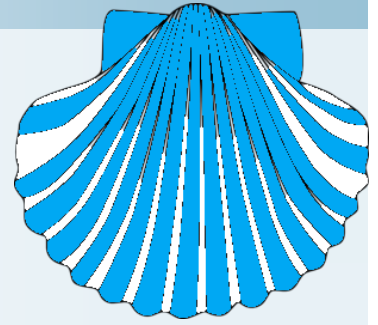

Thus alle this thyngys turnyng up so down, this creatur whych many yerys had gon wyl and evyr ben unstable was parfythly drawnen and steryd to entren the wey of hy perfeccyon, which parfyth wey Cryst ower Savyowr in hys propyr persooone examplyd. Sadly he trad it and dewly he went it befor.

Than this creatur, of whom thys tretys thorw the mercy of Jhesu schal schewen in party the levyng, towched be the hand of owyr Lord wyth grett bodyly sekenesse, wher thorw sche lost reson and her wyttes a long tym tyl ower Lord be grace restoryd her ageyn, as it schal mor openly be schewed aftyrward. Her werdly goodys, which wer plentyuows and abundawnt at that day, in lytyl whyle after wer ful bareyn and bare. Than was pompe and pryde cast down and leyd on syde.
